THE RABBI SPEAKS

RABBI BARRY BLOCK

Dear Friends:

This month, The Social Justice Torah Commentary, the second book that I have edited for CCAR Press, will become available in print almost exactly two years after its predecessor, The Mussar Torah Commentary. I am infinitely grateful to Temple leadership—above all, our Presidents, Carol Parham and Amanda Ferguson—for their faith that I could and would discharge my duties to the congregation even while engaged in book projects.

With respect to The Social Justice Torah Commentary, my gratitude to Congregation B'nai Israel runs deeper, all the way back to the days when I was a candidate to become your rabbi.

I came to you at age 50, so I had a considerable track record, almost entirely in one congregation. While I was of course not privy to conversations that members of the Search Committee had with folks at my previous congregation, I could easily infer that they were told something like, “If you don’t want a rabbi who gives political sermons, don’t hire Rabbi Block.”

The Search Committee broached the subject with me. I explained that I did not give “political” sermons, which I define as endorsing or opposing a candidate from the bimah, which I would never do and which would threaten our tax-exempt status (even though plenty of preachers do that with no consequences). As we talked further, the Search Committee and I agreed that sermons on social justice topics ought to be firmly grounded in Jewish text and tradition.

Rabbis who articulate social justice arguments are sometimes accused—not always unfairly—of basing a complex and controversial assertion about society merely on a pithy phrase from the Torah, such as “created in God’s image” or “Justice, justice shall you pursue,” with little depth.

I might have been guilty of that charge from time to time before coming to Congregation B'nai Israel.

The Social Justice Torah Commentary is both an antidote to that accusation and a refutation of it. The book's contributors build social justice arguments on robust and creative employment of the Torah's own words and commentary—including academic biblical exegesis, classical midrash and commentary, modern midrash, and more.

I would not have been positioned to edit this book, or even have thought to propose it, were I not appropriately challenged by the Temple leaders who selected me as your rabbi and by those who have partnered with me since 2013.

At this writing, the Director of CCAR Press and I have scheduled a meeting to discuss my next book. I am not certain what that will be, or even if there will be one. If there is, though, I know that it will be deeply impacted by the leaders and members of Congregation B'nai Israel.

Faithfully,

Rabbi Barry H. Block

Return to the Temple
In-Person in November

The Ritual Committee has unanimously determined that we shall return to in-person Shabbat worship at the Temple, beginning November 5. Services will also be livestreamed from the Sanctuary on Friday nights and also on those Saturday mornings when we celebrate a Bar/Bat Mitzvah. Torah Study and Shabbat morning worship (when we do not have a Bar/Bat Mitzvah) will also be held in-person at the Temple and will be available at home via Zoom, utilizing our Meeting Owl.

Based on feedback from those who worshiped at home during the High Holy Days, we will not be sharing prayer book pages on screen for those who are live-streaming services from the Sanctuary. (For many months, we have not been sharing prayer book pages on the screen on Shabbat mornings.)

Therefore, if you plan to worship from home throughout the duration of the pandemic, you may borrow a copy of Mishkan T'filah from the Temple by contacting Keila, 501-225-9700 or TempleSecretary@bnai-israel.us, and completing a prayer book borrowing form which may be found on our website.

Prayer book pick-up will be November 1-5.

However, please note that the opportunity to borrow Mishkan T'filah will end with the pandemic, and all borrowed prayer books will need to be returned when the pandemic ends. You may prefer to purchase Mishkan T'filah, which you may do here: Mishkan T'filah: Shabbat, transliterated (ccarpress.org). Mishkan T'filah is also available as an e-book, e.g., purchased for Kindle via Amazon.

Please note that, in order to facilitate this process as efficiently as possible, all services will utilize Mishkan T'filah until further notice.

FROM EILEEN HAMILTON, DIRECTOR OF EDUCATION

Know that your kindness has a ripple effect in the universe...

Ru-ach-amim is taking hold around our religious school. It is the combination of Ruach (spirit) and Rachamim (compassion) that translates loosely into being spirited to do kind things for others. As Hanukkah approaches at the end of November this year, there is no better time to exhibit our kindness to others and make our world a happier place. Surely gift giving at holiday time makes folks happy. The warm feelings of giving and receiving are hardly underestimated.

Two years ago, we began the first year of our pandemic school year with distributing a bucket to all our students and sharing the story Have You Filled a Bucket Today? by Carol McCloud. The story teaches us to be ‘bucket fillers’ by adding smiles, warmth and kindness into the world. It also reminds us that at times, we are ‘bucket dippers’, people who do unkind things that take away happiness. We oversee filling our own bucket as well as others, and we are in charge of our own happiness and to not let our buckets become empty and depleted. This is a daily balance for many, yet in the end, we can realize that our buckets overflow with good and that not everyone in the world has a bucket as full and bountiful as our own.

This year for Hanukkah, we will become Bucket Fillers again. In November, all students will receive an empty bucket to decorate and fill. The items placed inside will be at your discretion, but the idea is to fill the bucket with good thoughts and feelings, a smile, and kindness. Each bucket will contain the book for the recipient to read. What else you choose to put in the bucket is up to you – as you decide how to spread the feeling of happiness. Your bucket will be returned to Temple before the end of our first semester of religious school and then distributed out to surrounding organizations as a gift to those in need at nursing homes, homeless shelters, hospitals, and more.

This holiday season will be special and abundant for most of us. Let’s fill the buckets of others with cheer, decoration, supplies, notes, and more. It’s our command to make the world a better place and to do it with vigor and heart – the true definition of RU-ach-amim!

Milton Boyd, our beloved custodian of B’nai Israel is retiring this spring. To honor him for his devoted years of service to B’nai Israel, we are collecting donations as a gift for Milton.

If you wish to be part of the monetary gift, please send your donation to the office by March 15, 2022, noted ‘Milton’.

FROM THE PRESIDENT, AMANDA O. FERGUSON

Dear friends,

It is hard to believe that it is already November, and we will be celebrating Chanukah immediately after Thanksgiving this year. I think it is timely that these two holidays fall so close together this year. Thanksgiving reminds us to be thankful for all we have in our lives, and Chanukah reminds us to be thankful for God's miracles, specifically the miracle of light. I am going to add that this year in particular I am thankful for the miracle of technology!!!

Technology has allowed us to return to worship in person, and still provide a streaming option for those that are not yet comfortable gathering in person as well as for those who are happier attending worship from the comfort of their home. Technology has allowed us to continue religious school via Zoom, and it has allowed us to offer multiple access points for Torah Study and Adult Learning as well.

Along with this technology come the folks who have had to learn how to use it and who diligently operate things for us so that the show can go on. Tim Kessler, head of our Tech committee, along with Josiah Wheeler have run the streaming for the majority of our in-person worship, and without them we would not be able to stream these events. Tim is developing a committee that includes Josiah Wheeler, Perry Young, and Bruce Greenberg, and himself - so far. If you have an interest in being part of the tech committee and assisting in streaming, please reach out and let us know. The training is easy, and the more people we have trained to assist the less any one volunteer is required to give of their time. I can't thank Tim and his committee members enough for helping us break new ground. And, of course, thank you again to the Ottenheimer Brothers Foundation for granting us the funds to purchase such great equipment.

I am so happy we are beginning in person worship again. I look forward to seeing some of you in person and some online, and of course I look forward to hearing your feedback from both options. Please know you can always reach out to me, or any board member, with concerns or ideas you may have. If you would like to become more involved, please let us know that as well. We are always looking for folks to volunteer and who knows, you may have that special skill we are in search of.

Wishing you all a Happy Thanksgiving and a Happy Chanukah!

Best, Amanda
